Not illustrated. 1921 Excerpt: . . . on which I wish to dwell this morning in the discussion of the needs for a stout heart. Graduation day is called commencement, because it is not so much the end of student life as the beginning of professional or vocational life. Young men and women, as they finish school, step out upon the great stage of life to do a part for themselves in life's drama. They are no longer to be dependent upon home and school for support and instruction, but they now take up for themselves the tasks of earning a livelihood and of carving out a destiny. The choice of a field of endeavour, a profession, or a vocation requires a stout heart. There is no insurance company to guarantee against a misfit and against economic or industrial incompetency or mistake. There are many examples of the disaster of such incompetency or inefficiency. To hold oneself above the fogs and haze of personal distrust and misgiving, and at the same time to take the only real precaution against failure that it is safe to trust: viz. , adequate preparation: this is one of the finest types of courage. Genius is a talent set to work by courage. Fidelity is the courage to be true to the last, and to do one's best under all circumstances. As many as are the trials, the discouragements, the conflicts, the perils, the hardships of life, so many are the places where nothing will bring us...
