These were the same as those represented respectively in figures 1 and 2, and in figure 11, of the plates attached to the following account. I had no hesitation in giving my opinion that, whatever unforeseen practical difficulties might be found in the actual introduction of those constructions into chronometers, the principle was correct, and admitted of being carried so far as actually to reverse the error, causing the chronometers to gain at extreme temperatures instead of losing, as is the case with all common chronometers; and, therefore, that the adjustment for equalization of rates throughout would become a question of mere manual dexterity. With my consent, therefore, Mr. Eiffe solicited of the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, authority for the trial of two chronometers at the Royal Observatory, with special reference to the steadiness of their rates at extreme temperatures. Accordingly, two chronometers containing Mr. Eiffe's improvements (marked Eiffe 3 and Eiffe 4) were tried at the Royal Observatory in juxtaposition with two good Government chronometers (Earnshaw 543 and Earnshaw 819)...
